

Receiving Payments in Civil and Bankruptcy Cases

Remark :

- In the case of the entitled person has deceased, the heir of such person may file an application with the court to appoint the administrator of the deceased's estate or make a request with the court for repayment. After the court grants the permission, the heir of the entitled person shall present the court's order certified by the director of the court or his representative before the executing officer to receive the payment.
- In the case of name change, please present the name change certificate to the executing officer. If the name of the entitled person, either surname or first name, differs from what appeared in the writ of execution, the entitled person shall bring such writ of execution and file a motion to the court to alter it, and subsequently presenting the amended writ of execution to the executing officer to receive the payment.
